

ICPM is a global network of pension organizations that focuses on fostering long-term investing, strengthening governance of pension investments, and improving design and governance of pension schemes.

The International Centre for Pension Management (ICPM) was founded in 2004 in order to bridge the gap between academic research and the pension fund industry. ICPM became an independent non-profit organization in 2015 and has grown into a global network of pension organizations from around the world that collectively manage more than US$6 trillion in assets.

We design biannual Discussion Forums and year-round virtual round tables for the network, education programs for pension fund board members, trustees, and C-suite executives, research initiatives for academics, and public webinars and thought leadership series for practitioners, policy-makers, and the broader public.

What makes ICPM unique?

- A global network for senior-level executives in the pension industry to gather international perspectives
- A safe space exclusively for asset owners with strict no sell-side and Chatham House Rule policy
- Comprehensive offering of in-person and virtual events to connect peers and academics on relevant and timely topics
- Education for board members and C-suite executives on pension governance, building trust, sustainable investing and other key topics
- Access to leading-edge research on all aspects of pension organizations, including pension design, investment and risk management, communications, governance and other organizational best practices

“In an ever-changing landscape, there is an immense need for pension funds to stay apprised of global best practices. As the preeminent global pension industry association, ICPM facilitates fantastic opportunities to connect with peers and ensure we are at the forefront of innovation.”

Michelle Ostermann ICPM Board Vice Chair

A curated suite of offerings

ICPM provides pension leaders with year-round opportunities to have thoughtful conversations with peers on key topics, all in a safe and supportive environment.

Discussion Forums

Held semi-annually in different parts of the world, member-only Discussion Forums provide a collegial setting for exchange of ideas among senior executives in the ICPM network. Critical pension issues are addressed by leading authorities from the network, academia, the global pension sector, and policy-making circles.

Virtual Round Tables

Also exclusive to the network, round tables gather peers from around the world for active discussion on relevant topics. Function-specific round tables connect CIOs, CROs, Heads of Responsible Investment and Heads of Member Communications several times a year. Members also pose questions to the network for round tables on specific topics, gathering insights and perspectives from funds around the world.

Virtual Feedback Sessions

Members present projects and initiatives to the network for feedback in a supportive environment.

Thought Leadership

Public webinars and other recordings feature expert speakers who share their practical industry experience and latest research.

Pension Education

Unique global governance programs designed exclusively for pension fund board members and C-level executives addressing an effective board's role in key areas, including responsible investing, member communications, IT and cybersecurity and other global challenges facing pensions. Partnering with world-class academic institutions, the education is provided in small class settings.

Research

Collation of leading-edge and rigorous research on pension management and long-horizon investing through an annual Research Award, as well as opportunities for pension funds and pension research entities to collaborate and stimulate new thinking through Working Groups.

The ICPM network brings together nearly 50 pension organizations organizations, known as ICPM Research Partners, from around the world.
